Headline: What is college all about?

Is it about . . . getting a degree so you can land your dream job? Creating a better future for yourself? Exploring what the world has in store for you? Yes, and so much more.

At the University of Wyoming, you'll get a high-quality education at an incredible value in one of the world's most beautiful places.

Page 3

Headline: Some of the best classrooms aren't classrooms.

At the University of Wyoming, learning happens in places you might not expect. From summiting Wyoming's highest mountain peak to exploring Viking economics in Iceland, our students regularly flex their restless curiosity in Wyoming and around the world.

Pull Quote: "When the university asked me to teach a class, I said I could do it - but not in a classroom. As a field person, I took a look and decided to teach something that's not taught at anywhere else, because there's no place like this in all of the United States." – Mark Jenkins, a renowned mountaineer, UW graduate and field staff writer for National Geographic.

Pull Quote: "We get to participate in a lot of hands-on learning, whether it be out at the farm, riding horses or even in the lab. It seems like we get emails every other day about participating in research projects, which I feel is super neat. I think that sets us apart. It really will increase our learning experience." – Kaitlyan Reed, majoring in animal and veterinary sciences with a minor in agricultural business.

Pull Quote: "I think the experiences from traveling abroad are going to have a great impact on how I see the world and what type of person I become" – Colorado French, one of 15 students who traveled to Iceland as part of UW's innovative first-year seminars abroad.

Headline: There's no place like home. But this will be close.

Living on campus is convenient, fun and community-focused. As a freshman, you'll live in the residence halls during your first year. This gives you the opportunity to meet students who are learning and growing in the same ways you are. You'll find new friends and study groups as well as connect with other students who share your interests.

Pull Quote: "As a freshman, it was nice because you were so close to your classes, you didn't have to worry about driving or finding parking. It was nice to have a dining hall and just to be focused on school and adapting instead of paying rent and preparing a meal.” – Maria Debroy, a computer science major who has lived on campus for three years.

Pull Quote: “Living on campus is a really good experience. You don’t have to worry about a lot of things that people off campus worry about, like going out and buying your own food. You’re really close to all the activities. There’s always something going on. It’s cool to be connected and to be the central hub with all that’s being advertised.” – Ian White, majoring in criminal justice with minors in sociology and music.

Pull Quote: “Being surrounded by people who were like me and had similar interests for the first time was life-changing. There was always someone I could go to for homework help or a quick study session before a test.” – Kendalyn Morgan, an architectural engineering major who serves as an RA in McIntyre Hall.

Headline: Big appetite? We’ve got you covered.

Students living in the residence halls can choose from three meal plans at Washakie Dining Center. Plus, each meal plan includes Dining Dollars that can be used at all dining locations across campus. Here at UW, your dining options are never limited.

Pull Quote: “My favorite meal would be Washakie’s tomato soup and grilled cheese, especially when they have it on a cold day.” – Kendalyn Morgan

Pull Quote: “My favorite meal is the soup and salad combo from Grassroots!” – Maria Debroy

Pull Quote: “I like the broccoli and beef fried rice from Panda Express.” – Makayla Gamble

Headline: Life in Laradise.

We call it Laradise because our small town truly has something for everyone. The opportunities are endless. With 2.9 million acres of nearby national forests and a fun downtown atmosphere, it’s a no brainer why Forbes ranked Laramie as the sixth best college town.

Pull Quote: “There’s a whole bunch of outdoor stuff you can do in any weather. Laramie’s a really good place to do it all.” – Morgan Robins, an anthropology major.

Pull Quote: “One of my favorite things to do on the weekends is to spend time downtown with friends. It’s such a fun and unique atmosphere, plus there are a lot of great restaurants to choose from.” – Makayla Gamble, a senior studying international studies and Japanese.

Headline: Calling all outdoor enthusiasts.

If you are an outdoor enthusiast and want exposure to new adventures, then the University of Wyoming is the perfect fit for you. Access to Medicine Bow National Forrest and Curt Gowdy State Park are within 30 miles of Laramie, which provides ample opportunities for students to enjoy outdoor activities year-round. Not to mention that UW was ranked as the 12th best outdoors school in America.

Pull Quote: “I think our Outdoor Program is awesome. It’s a really good way to get to know people who have similar interests and get experience in the outdoors.” – Tyler Carroll of Parker, Colorado.

Pull Quote: “The cool thing about the Outdoor Leadership Freshmen Interest Group in particular is that people have different majors and interests, but they all have a common goal of enjoying the outdoors and a passion for the environment in general.” – Nathan Brock of Monument, Colorado.

Pull Quote: “Being outdoors is important to me and to my research, so I appreciate being able to go into nature without traveling a long distance.” – Madison Crawford, a botany major from Newcastle, Wyoming.

Headline: Life-changing opportunities around the world.

Experiencing and understanding different cultures is more important now than ever before. Here at the University of Wyoming, there are over 400 education abroad locations as well as grants, scholarships and exchanges to make it all possible. Hundreds of UW students study abroad each year, whether it be for a couple of weeks, a semester or an entire year.

Pull Quote: “Living in a foreign country and navigating a different culture allows you to grow as a human being and open your mind to new and diverse concepts and experiences. There is a large emphasis on enabling students to study abroad by providing scholarships, exchanges, service trips or teacher-led programs that match all interests and financial needs.” – Maggie Huss, who studied abroad at the University of Strasbourg in France.

Pull Quote: “I know what it feels like to celebrate on New Year’s Eve in the Puerta del Sol in Madrid; I’ve felt the chill of a windy January day on the Mediterranean in Marseille; I’ve drunk hot glüwein in a holiday market in Hamburg; and I’ve listened to the fountains of la Alhambra in Granada.” – Garrett Cruzan, who studied abroad at the Netherlands’ University College Utrecht.

Pull Quote: “I was climbing a volcano in the Canary Islands, and when I reached the top, we were above the clouds. That’s when I decided what I wanted to do with my life. I realized my passions.” – Kaitlyn Emerson, who studied abroad at the University of Salamanca in Spain.

Headline: The world is your stage.

With the benefits of one-on-one mentoring, our students have thrived at national acting competitions, performed at the Lincoln Center in New York and studied visual arts in some of Europe’s top museum. No matter what your passion is, the University of Wyoming will give you the opportunity to shine.

Pull Quote: “Auditioning class as UW really taught me well. The training was excellent and comprehensive.” – Claudine Mboligikpelani Nako, professional actress and 2008 theater and dance alumna.

Pull Quote: “If I went to Berklee (College of Music), I’d just be another number, another vocalist. Working with Director of Jazz Studies Ben Markley, I’ve been able to be on an album, sing with a few of the artists in residency, sing with the jazz band and go to New York. It's nice when you have someone behind you who is cheering you on and who knows what steps you need to take to get where you want to go." – Lora Sherrodd, music major and jazz vocalist.

Headline: Today's athletes, tomorrow's leaders.

University of Wyoming athletes develop the leadership skills necessary to achieve greatness. Notable alumni include Larry Nance Jr., center for the Cleveland Cavaliers, and Josh Allen, quarterback for the Buffalo Bills. UW athletics gives student athletes the ability to grow in all areas with advanced athletic facilities and a strong academic support system.

Pull Quote: "The biggest thing I took with me from Wyoming is an underdog mentality. We may not have been the highest-ranked team all the time, but we had the toughness to beat a bunch of teams we shouldn't have" – Larry Nance Jr., UW alumna and power forward for the Cleveland Cavaliers.

Headline: Embrace your competitive side.

The University of Wyoming is home to 21 club sports, all of which are organized and run by students. Club sports give students the opportunity to compete at the regional, national and even international level. Students can meet people who share similar interests in a competitive environment. And the best part about UW club sports? All skill levels are welcome!

Pull Quote: "It's a really fun group of people, and they're very encouraging. With the ski team, I've skied all over the country. I love being outside." – Morgan Robins, treasurer of the Nordic Ski Club.

Page 12

Headline: It's not what you are that makes you a cowboy, it's who you are.

The world needs more cowboys, but not the kind that ride horses. The world needs more wonder, more curiosity and more adventure. The world needs more creative thinkers, challenge seekers and go-getters. Do you have what it takes to be a cowboy?

Pull Quote: "It's home of the Wyoming Cowboys. I love the fact that there's so much Poke pride. You feel a part of a community here." – Lucas Lindquist of Nunn, Colorado.

Pull Quote: "If I had to do it all over again, I would still choose to be a Cowboy." – Hunter Rowe of Colorado Springs, Colorado.
